Signature Practice Sheet

1. Warm up and find your rhythm

Trace the gray strokes slowly, then copy them freehand on the empty part of the line. Keep your wrist loose and move from the arm. Two or three minutes of this before you practice makes your signature smoother and more even.

Slant practice Write your signature along the slant lines so every letter leans the same way.

Tip: sit square to the page, tilt the paper slightly, and sign at your normal speed once the strokes feel easy.

2. Try three versions, then test them small

Write each version a few times. Don't judge the first one; look for the version you can repeat the same way every time.

Full name Your whole name, the way you would sign a document.

First initial and surname Shorter, quicker, and still recognizably you.

Initials only For initials boxes, quick approvals and small spaces.

Size check Sign once inside each box. Print at 100% (Actual size) so the boxes are true to size.

3 inches wide

2 inches wide

1 inch wide

Pick the version that passes all four:

- ☐ You can sign it the same way five times in a row.
- ☐ It still looks like the same signature in the 1 inch box.
- ☐ It has one clear feature people will recognize, like a big first letter, a strong underline or a clean finish.
- ☐ You can sign it in about the time it takes to say your name.

Practice the winner a few minutes a day. Short daily sessions work better than one long one.

3. Your final signature, ready to photograph

When your new signature feels natural, sign it in the big box with a black pen. Then turn it into a clean image: lay the page flat in even light with no shadows, photograph it straight on, and crop to the corner marks.

Full signature. Sign along the dotted line, in the middle of the box, without touching the corner marks.

Turning the photo into a signature image

1. Use a black pen with a medium tip. Thin ballpoint lines can disappear when the image is made small.
2. Photograph in daylight or under a bright lamp, phone held flat above the page, with no shadow of your hand or phone.
3. Crop to the corner marks so only the signature and white paper are left.
4. For email and PDFs, a PNG with a transparent background looks cleanest on any color. Many PDF and signature tools can remove the white paper for you, or you can use the photo as it is on white documents.
5. Keep the original photo somewhere safe, and only share your signature image with people and documents you trust.
